Good Evening,

Please find enclosed my submission to the Victorian law reform commission in support of making changes to stalking laws.

Intervention orders are simply not enough In today's modern world. They are viewed as nothing more than a piece of paper to those who seek protection from it and to those who are meant to be deterred from it.

[REDACTED]

Victoria police can not be there for every victim at every hour and therefore I believe new powers should be given to Victoria police to enforce harsher punishments to those who have intervention orders taken out against them.

Victims should not live in fear everyday from their stalkers. A change in the system can save countless innocent lives.

Thankyou for your time
